

Call for Papers

Migration Working Group 2024–2025

Every academic year, the Migration Working Group (MWG) at the EUI invites advanced master's students, PhD researchers, post-doctoral fellows and visiting scholars to present their latest research, exchange ideas, and discuss all topics related to migration. As a researcher-led initiative, we encourage participation from all levels of the EUI community.

We invite those interested to send paper proposals including a short bio (300–500 words total) to MigrationWorkingGroup@eui.eu. Please indicate the current stage of your contribution (early draft, or full paper). The deadline is Sunday, 29 September.

Our seminar series features monthly sessions, beginning in October 2024. Every time, two researchers present their papers. Each contributor chooses an individual discussant whose comments are followed by an audience Q&A. The format is hybrid, but we encourage and prefer in-person participation. We invite you to send us proposals for papers related but not limited to these topics:

- Public attitudes towards migration
- Labour markets, welfare states, and migration policies
- Foreign aid, development, and criticism thereof
- Migration governance
- Migration narratives including in literature
- Integration, racism, and discrimination
- Border enforcement, migration controls, and mobility practices
- Technology in border migration
- Challenges to migrants' rights, migrant resistance, and agency
- Settlement in colonialism, and post-colonial discourse
- Forced migration, population exchange, exile, diaspora
- Abduction, human trafficking, and ransom
- Migration choices
- Emigration, brain drain, and remittance
- Trade and migration
- Seasonal migration, habitual migration, and nomadism
- Method and theory in the study of migration

The scope of contributions is global and interdisciplinary with exploration of extra-European issues particularly welcome. For further info visit our EUI site which is being updated for the coming term.
