

Starting in September of your first year at the EUI, and continuing through to your final thesis, the EUI English Unit provides support for your writing, from finding your own writing style, to pushing through the so-called writer's block, to finding ways to make your academic voice clearer, to helping you with grammatical accuracy, to finding the right words.

In September we offer pre-sessional academic writing courses, open to everyone in the first year of their doctoral journey. In order to organize effective groups, we would like to see a sample of your writing.

- Write 1000 words explaining your motivation for choosing your research topic. For us to be able to create effective classes, this obviously needs to be written by yourself alone, with no input from anyone else.
- Save this as a Word document with the title:
